

Ca' Sette

Hotel and restaurant in a Venetian Villa

The history...

Villa Ca' Sette takes its name from the Venetian family Golini-Sette, who built the Villa in the late 1700's as a summer residence.

In the book "History of Bassano" by O. Brentari, there is an engraving of the villa depicting Napoleonic troops amassed in the courtyard during the battle of Brenta of 1796. The villa was occupied by various families until 1957, when Ca' 7 Restaurant was opened and soon became a reference point for the élite of

Bassano and Europe. In 1994 the new owner initiated an ambitious reconstruction project which culminated six years later, with the opening of the new Restaurant Ca' 7. Some months later, the Hotel Villa Ca' Sette was inaugurated and it is composed of a total of seventeen rooms and 2 suites surrounded by a large Italian garden with a view of Bassano
